AN ALMANACK

FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD

1782.

BEING THE SECOND AFTER BISSEXTILE OR LEAP YEAR, AND SIXTH OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

CALCULATED FOR THE MERIDIAN OF BOSTON, LAT. 42. DEG. 25. MIN. NORTH.

By DANIEL GEORGE, Philomath.

How vain and fruitleſs is th' attempt of Man,
The great Perfections of a GOD to ſcan!
Who rules the World, with an unbounded ſway,
And ſhines, tho' darkneſs intercept the Day!
Before all Time he was; before the Sun
Rejoic'd through Heav'n his mighty courſe to run;
He gave the wide Creation inſtant Birth,
And fix'd the Pillars of the floating Earth.

A RIDDLE. By a young Lady.

SO capracious am I, that if Monarchs ſhould offer
Their kingdoms, I ſcarce would accept of their proffer;
Since no land in the world I ever could find,
That ſuited exactly the turn of my mind:
Yet guiltleſs I often am plac'd under ground,
But return from my priſon both healthy and ſound.
At dinner I'm often receiv'd by the great.
When I go on command, but as quickly retreat;
For no art they can uſe, will oblige me to ſtay,
And I always contrive to ſlip ſoftly away.
On the tops of high trees I ſometimes reſide,
When I tremble with fear, tho' I ſparkle with pride.
I delight in a river, but this I muſt ſay,
I ſeldom adventure to ſail on the ſea.
The ſtars are my friends, but as for the ſun,
With precipitation his ardour I ſhun,
I'm fear'd by the ancient, and lov'd by the boy,
Who rides on my back, and beholds me with joy.

N B The Anſwer may be expected in next Year's Almanack.

An Epigram.

CRIES Celia to a Rev'rend Dean,
What reaſon can be giv'n,
Since marriage is a holy thing,
That there is none in Heav'n?
There are no women, he reply'd:
She quick returns the jeſt,
Women there are, but I'm afraid
They cannot find a Prieſt.

Vacations at Harvard College.

FROM Commencement, four weeks. From the third Wedneſday in October, two weeks. From the firſt Wedneſday in January, five weeks. From the ſecond Wedneſday in April, two weeks.

By a gentleman who lived upon ill terms with his wife.

YE Gods, ye gave to me a wife
Out of your wonted favor,
To be the comfort of my life;
And I was glad to have her.
But if your Providence divine
For greater bliss design her,
T' obey your will at any time,
I'm ready to resign her.

The marvellous Story-teller.

ONE who had travelled as far as Persia, spoke to his man John, as he was returning home, telling him how necessary it was that a traveller should draw things beyond the life, otherwise he could not hope for that respect from his countrymen which otherwise he might have. But at the same time John, said he, wheresoever I shall come or stop, keep you close to my chair, and if I very much exceed the bounds of truth, punch me behind, that I may correct myself. It happened one day, that he dined with a certain gentleman, who shall be nameless, where he affirmed, that he saw a monkey in the island of Borneo, which had a tail threescore yards long. John punch'd him. I am certain it was fifty at least. John punch'd again. I believe, to speak within compass, for I do not measure it, it must have been forty. John gave him t'other touch. I remember it lay over a quickset hedge, and therefore could not be less than thirty. John at him again. I could take my oath it was twenty. This did not satisfy John. Upon which the master turned about in a rage, and said, would you have the monkey without any tail at all?

How to cure the Itch.

MIX a little fine bay salt, and as much flour of brimstone, with a little sweet oil; rub it well in the palms of the hands, and dry it in. It commonly cures in three days.

To cure the Rheumatism.

DRINK very largely of warm water in bed; or, tar water, morning and evening.

To cure Hoarseness.

RUB the soles of the feet before the fire, with garlick and lard, well beaten together, over night. The hoarseness will be gone next day.

AN HYMN TO PROVIDENCE.

ETERNAL wisdom, sov'reign care,
Of universal nature hear!
Accept my humble wishes, and grant
What e'er thou know'st I really want.
Just is the homage, which I pay
To thy supreme, unbounded sway,

Moves, and proclaims its Maker's praise.
The artist in his work appears,
And humble man adores and fears,
While seraphs, with ecstatic fire,
Burn, sing, and ever rapt admire.
No less thy wisdom is display'd
Where moral scenes require thy aid:

In nature's Drama, ev'ry part
Is acted with the nicest art;
Agents, or rational or not,
Conspire to weave the cur'ous plot;
Mind acts on matter, this on that;
Poor mortals little know for what!

Let fools project, and madmen rave,
The wise contrive, and misers save,
The good submit, the crafty cheat;—
No scheme shall ever thine defeat:
Passions and projects all agree,
With various views to work for thee;

All must promote the grand design,
And to one centre still incline.
Surprizing parts! stupendous whole!
Wisdom too high for human soul!
To see, through all extent of space,
Each diff'ring nature keep its place,
Perform its part, and work its end,

AS great a philosopher as this prince is, he has moments of turbulent passion. An instance of this came to the writer's knowledge from his own lips. He is very fond of music, and is a very good performer upon the German flute; nevertheless, during last war, meeting with a very hard concerto, which he could not go through to his satisfaction, he was so enraged that he broke his flute to pieces. However, recollecting himself in a few moments, he gathered up the fragments, and committed them to the flames, that even his attendants might not discover his weakness, saying at the same time. "How my enemies would triumph over me, if they knew this!"

OF PHILIP II. OF SPAIN.

PHILIP the second, walking one day alone in one of the cloisters of the convent of the Escurial, an honest tradesman, seeing the door open, went in. Transported with admiration of the fine paintings with which that house was adorned, he addressed himself to the King, whom he took for one of the servants of the convent, and desired him to shew him the paintings, and explain the subjects of them. Philip, with all the humility and condescension of a lay-brother, conducted him through the apartments, and gave him all the satisfaction he could desire. At parting, the stranger took him by the hand, and squeezing it affectionately said, "I am much obliged to you, friend: I live at "St. Martin's, and my name is Michael Bambis: If you "should chance to come my way, and call upon me, you "will find a glass of good wine at your service." "And "my name," said the pretended servant, "is Philip the "second, and if you will call upon me at Madrid, I will "give you a glass of as good."

OF CASIMIR II. KING OF POLAND.

WHILE Casimir was Prince of Sandomir, he won at play, all the money of one of his nobility, who, incensed at his ill fortune, struck the Prince a blow on the ear, in the heat of passion. He fled immediately from justice; but being pursued and overtaken, was condemned to lose his head; but the generous Casimir determined otherwise. "I am not surprised, said he, at the gentleman's conduct; for not having it in his power to revenge himself on fortune, no wonder he should attack her favourite." After which he revoked the sentence, returned the nobleman his money, and declared that he alone was faulty, as he encouraged by his example a pernicious practice, that might terminate in the ruin of hundreds of the people.

THOUGHTS and MAXIMS upon several Subjects.

THE way to grow rich, is not to neglect small matters; the way to be well served, to pay well, and examine what you buy; to be respected by servants, never to be familiar with them; and, to be respected by your acquaintance, to respect yourself.

To be esteemed a good neighbour, do little friendly offices with a good grace, and gratefully repay the smallest favour; to please in conversation, learn to hear; and know when to speak; and, to correct your foibles, mark their effects in others.

Shew that you love your religion by making its precepts the rule of your conduct; but leave to others to wrangle, and dispute, and fight for opinions.

Books are useful monitors, or dangerous guides: Read to improve your mind, not to kill time.

Benevolence is the light and joy of a good mind: It is more blessed to give than to receive.

APPROVED REMEDIES.

How to cure an Ague.

GO into a cold bath just before the cold fit: Or, take a handful of groundsel, shred it small put it into a paper bag, four inches square, pricking that side which is to be next the skin, full of holes. Cover this with a thin linen, and wear it on the pit of the stomach, renewing it two hours before the fit: Or apply a handful of yarrow in like manner; or a large onion slit: Or drink a quart of cold water, just before the cold fit; then go to bed and sweat.

To cure St. Anthony's Fire.

DRINK a pint of sea-water every morning for seven days. It seldom fails.

To cure the Asthma.

TAKE a spoonful of nettle juice, mixt with clarified honey, every morning: Or take an ounce of quick-silver every morning, and a spoonful of the gas of sulpher, in a large glass of spring-water, at five in the evening, and at bed-time, 'till you are well.
